

UNIVERSIDAD DE LAS FUERZAS ARMADAS ESPE

Course members:

Dario Constante

Miguel Sangucho

Kerlly Unaicho

Katherin Porras

Date: 2/06/2026

NRC: 47957

Topic: B1-Level English: -ed and -ing Adjectives & Email Writing

Difference Between -ed and -ing Adjectives

We use -ed and -ing adjectives to describe feelings and situations.

1. -ED Adjectives

Use -ed adjectives to describe how a person feels.

Structure: Person + be + adjective (-ed)

- I am excited about the trip.
- She feels embarrassed.
- They were confused by the instructions.

-ed adjectives describe feelings or emotions.

2. -ING Adjectives

Use -ing adjectives to describe a thing, situation, or person that causes the feeling.

Structure: Thing/Situation + be + adjective (-ing)

- The movie is exciting.
- The presentation was embarrassing.
- The instructions are confusing.

-ing adjectives describe the cause of the feeling.

Quick Comparison

-ED Adjective

-ING Adjective

interested

interesting

excited

exciting

bored

boring

confused

confusing

frightened

frightening

Example:

- I am bored. → This is my feeling.
- The class is boring. → The class causes the feeling.

Instructions to Write an Email (B1 Level)

Work in groups of 3 – 4 people. Only one person from the group must upload the task.

Use all the given words below in your email and highlight them in different colors. Use them as adjectives.

Verb	Noun	Adjective
amuse	amusement	amusing / amused
challenge	challenge	challenging / challenged
confuse	confusion	confusing / confused
disgust	disgust	disgusting / disgusted
embarrass	embarrassment	embarrassing / embarrassed
excite	excitement	exciting / excited
frighten	fright	frightening / frightened
interest	interest	interesting / interested

This email must be done between 150 – 180 words.

Use this document to develop your email. Write it at the bottom of this information. Don't erase it.

Upload your task to classroom in PDF format.

1. Greeting

Start your email politely.

Examples: Dear Anna, / Hi John,

2. Introduction

Write the reason for your email.

Examples: I am writing to tell you about... / Thanks for your email.

3. Main Body

Write 2–3 paragraphs with your ideas. You can give information, describe advantages and disadvantages, express opinions, and give examples.

4. Conclusion

Finish your ideas politely.

Examples: I hope to hear from you soon. / Write back soon!

5. Closing

End the email politely.

Examples: Best wishes, / Regards, / See you soon,

Useful Tips for B1 Students

- Use short and clear sentences.
- Organize your ideas into paragraphs.
- Check spelling and punctuation.
- Use linking words.
- Use formal or informal language correctly.
- Please, write your email here.

ACTIVITY

NAMES:

- Miguel Sangucho
- Kerlly Unaucho
- Katherin Porras
- Dario Constante

Please, write your email here.

Dear Anna,

I hope you are doing very well. I am writing to tell you about this embarrassing but amusing experience. Moving to this new city and starting at my new school has been a total and great adventure.

The advantages of studying abroad include the great opportunity to meet new people from diverse cultures and countries, which is very exciting. Also, the city and the university are very interesting, with many engaging activities and opportunities to learn new things without getting bored.

However, living here can be challenging. Yesterday, finding my new classroom was very confusing, and I felt completely embarrassed because I arrived late to my first class. In my opinion, adapting to a new city is very difficult, but it is definitely an interesting experience.

Anyway, even though getting lost was a bit frightening and the cafeteria food is sometimes disgusting, I am truly amused by everything I am discovering here. If you are interested, I really hope you can visit me very soon so we can explore the city together.

See you soon,

Miguel

Activity performed by each member

Katherin Porras : Greeting

Kerlly Unaicho: Introduction

Dario Constante: Main Body

Miguel Sangucho: Conclusion - closing